The Bitter Bitten. (Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.) Mick and Pat went up to London together and as they strolled down one of the streets Pat noticed a shop which a solicitor had taken temporarily while his offices were being repaired. As there was nothing in the windows Pat went inside to inquire the reason. He saw two clerks sitting on their high stools busily writing. "I say," said Pat, "what do you sell here? You have nothing in the window."

"Oh," said one of the clerks with a smile, "we sell monkeys here."

"Well, then," returned Pat, "you must be doing a fine trade—only two of you left."

"Any rattlesnakes around here?"

"What's your business?" asked the boy with the big straw hat.

"What has that to do with it?"

"Well, the last man who looked around here for summer board, asked me a lot of questions like that, and when I told him there wasn't any rattlesnakes or mosquitoes or anything, he said he was a naturalist and he guessed the place wouldn't suit him."

REFUSED TO GREET TAFT

Suffragists Try to Snub Him With Backs Turned But Fail.

(Portland Dispatch.)

W. H. Taft declined to give audience to Oregon suffragists today, but sent word that he would shake hands with the women as he was whisked away to lunch. The women refused to wait, saying that their self-respect would not permit them to remain where they were not wanted. Then they lined up near the elevator and their backs were turned in the direction of the ex-President would take, but Mr. Taft did not appear and the women marched away.

All agreed that there was a misunderstanding. Mrs. Lee Davenport, who organized the delegation, believed that Judge C. H. Carey had made an appointment with Mr. Taft. Judge Carey explained that he had made no such promise, as he was in no position to do so.

Later when asked his views on suffrage Mr. Taft replied that his views on the subject will soon appear in print and that he did not expect any one to agree with them.

Mutton in Parvo.

(From the Wall Street Journal.)

According to a Shanghai paper just received a Chinese student wrote the following description of the European war and its cause:

"Now there is a great battle in Europe. This began because the prince of Austria went to Serbia with his wife. One man of Serbia killed him. Austria was angry, and so wrote Serbia, 'I will help you.' I will help you, France did not want to fight, but they got ready their soldiers. Germany write a letter to France, 'You don't get ready or I will fight you in nine hours.' Germany to fight them pass Belgium, Belgium say, 'I am a country; I am not a road.' And Belgium write a letter to England about Germany to help him. So England help Belgium."

He Was Outmatched.

"Did you hear about the row round at Penbecker's house last night?" Mr. Jones asked his wife as they sat at supper.

"No," said the lady, much interested. "What happened?"

"Penbecker tried to thrash his wife, and the police were called just in time to avert a tragedy."

"Oh, the brute! Did they take him to prison?"

"No, they carried him around to the hospital!"

We had a good revival at Hopewell. Dr. Pendleton Jones did the preaching and we all enjoyed it very much indeed. Eight joined by experience and two by letter.

We have had good rains at last, but too late to save the corn crop, and the cotton crop. Every thing has revived out of the parched state, and gone to growing. This hay is looking fine, the late pea crop is fine, but early peas nearly failed.

Mr. W. R. Cartie and daughter, Miss Iva have returned from a weeks stay in Charleston.

Miss Nannie Duckworth has returned home from North Carolina where she visited her sister, Mrs. Ben Ashley. She came back by Norfolk, Va., and visited the large warships, saw the German vessels that were captured and the thousands of German soldiers that had been on water until they could hardly walk on land. That is as near war as she wants to see.

The farmers of this section are very much distressed about their cotton rotting. This section lost about one third to one half their cotton by the boll rotting. Many stalks would have twenty-five rotten bolls and two or three good ones. They didn't find the rot until September and October last year, and this year it began the first of August.

The college boys and girls will soon leave us.

Biting the Dust.

During a peculiarly bad dust storm at one of the camps a recruit ventured to seek shelter in the sacred precincts of the cook's domain.

After a time he broke an awkward silence by saying to the cook:

"If you put the lid on that camp kettle you would not get so much dust in your soap."

The irate cook glared at the intruder and then broke out:

"See her my lad, your business is to serve your country."

"Yes," interrupted the recruit; "but not to eat it."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Could Fill the Bill.

He had told her the age-old story, and, torn with emotion, waited for a few short words that would decide his fate.

"George," she said, "before I give you my answer you must tell me something, or you wrinkle anything?"

A smile of relief lighted his handsome countenance. Was that all she wanted to know? Probably, triumphantly he clasped her in his arms and whispered in her shell-like ear.

"Anything," he said.—The Medicine Man.

Spoke From Experience.

A certain congressman had disastrous experience in gold mine speculation. One day a number of colleagues were discussing the subject of his speculation when one of them said to this western member:

"Old chap, as an expert, give us a definition of the term 'bonanza'."

"A 'bonanza,' replied the western member with emphasis, is a hole in the ground owned by a champion liar!"

GOODBYE TO GRAPE JUICE

Secretary Lansing Replaces Bryan Tipple With Wine.

(Washington Dispatch.)

Grape juice at diplomatic dinners given by the premier of the Wilson administration is a thing of the past.

Robert Lansing, the new secretary of state, entertained tonight in honor of Senhor Curdoza the Brazilian minister to Mexico. Grape juice was not in evidence despite the precedent set by William J. Bryan. The wines usually served at official dinners were provided for the guests.

"Wine will be served at all diplomatic banquets where the secretary of state is host," said Mrs. Lansing when questioned as to her plans. "Mr. Lansing and I are not extremists in the advocacy of temperance."

Senor Curdoza was also a guest of honor at a luncheon given at the Army and Navy club today by Assistant Secretary of War Breckenridge.

Beyond His Power.

A certain actor who possessed marvelous powers of mimicry, though he earned big money, was always very hard up. One day he visited his tailor to get him for a little more time to pay an account which had been owing for three years. While he was there a customer entered the shop, and, after asking for a suit, paid at once. Then the actor heaved a sigh of pain.

"What is the matter?" asked the tailor.

"Alas," replied the actor, signing again, "that is a man I shall never be able to imitate!"

First Impressions.

A well known novelist entered one of the police courts and the magistrate recognizing him as an old friend, invited him to take a seat on the bench. The novelist sat down beside the magistrate and looked around the crowded court.

"I see you have a remarkably tough lot of customers to deal with this morning," he said.

"Hush," replied the magistrate. "Those are the lawyers."

Grandma Used Sage Tea to Darken Hair

She Mixed Sulphur With it to Restore Color, Gloss, Thickness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will produce a revolution if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage and Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, is a troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy soft and luxuriant.

Says His Tongue Was Split by Austrians.

Private Murkuch, Russian Soldier.

This photograph, which comes from London, purports to show Private Murkuch of the Russian army, who declares that his tongue was split when he was captured by the Huns in the Austrian army. He said they insisted on his giving up information about the Russian movements and he declared, according to the information from British sources, that he was tortured in this way to compel him to talk. He refused, and later he escaped back to the Russian lines. The Russian authorities evidently believed his story, for he was decorated with gold, silver, copper, and iron medals of various orders in reward for his loyalty.
